

Forecasting the future... how ports will emerge from the economic downturn
Photo: Joachim Affeldt

January 2010
ISSUE 01 VOL 55

REGULARS

- Comment: Secretary General Naruse on the year ahead 3
- News: The latest industry news, including port updates, dredging projects, people and more 4
- Open Forum: Rotterdam's Hans Smits promotes long-term planning and sustainable activities 12
- Cover Story: A Moffatt & Nichol economist's perspective on the financial future; ports are proving as innovative as ever as they find ways to ride the economic downturn 24
- Maritime Update: COP 15 considered; new policy for UK ports; Gijón takes ESPO award; IMO on piracy 36
- IAPH Info: A welcome from your new secretary general; overview of Hamburg regional meeting; and more 40
- Last Word: Monica Bonvalet feels positive about the volume of investment going into ports worldwide 44

FEATURES

- Considering concessions: Expert opinion on the challenges and rewards to be found in African ports 14
- Into Africa: With interest and investment gathering in this continent, P&H considers the internal infrastructure 16
- Organising arrivals: Port of Newcastle's new system means there's no longer a race to the berth 18
- A step towards automation: Risavika's new system aids information exchange and productivity 21
- Slabs for simpler maintenance: A renewal project at the Port of Tokyo embodies new ideas 30
- Serving the Gulf: Aqaba's outlook is matched by its outreach and depth, Jem Newton reports 32
- Waterfront community: San Pedro's development will bring together commercial and industrial activity 34

