

Biometric scanning of hands and fingers is being incorporated into many ports' security infrastructure

Photo: iStockphoto

July 2010
ISSUE 04 VOL 55

REGULARS

- Comment Secretary General Naruse reflects on Savannah 3
- News The latest industry news, including port updates, dredging projects, people and more 4
- Open Forum Michel Donner urges ports to consider public-private partnerships if seeking investment 12
- Cover Story Different approaches, systems and attitudes to port access information systems; Port Safety and Security Committee chair considers PAIS in Rotterdam 22
- Maritime Update WPCI Environmental Ship Index; putting a stop to piracy; IMO sets goal-based standards 36
- IAPH Info A successful Mid-term Board Meeting in Savannah; PIANC and IAPH collaborate; four new members 40
- Last Word Port community systems offer a competitive edge, believes Frédéric Dagnet from Port of Marseille 44

FEATURES

- Creating cover A landlord port may be more at exposed than their assets suggest, warns an insurance expert 14
- IT contracts Consider the details when creating a good relationship between supplier and buyer 16
- Green design WWL wants to reduce the carbon footprint of its terminals, discovers Jem Newton 18
- Sea level exposure Start planning now to avoid that sinking feeling in the future 20
- Cruising throughput The ups and downs in the US industry as low-sulphur fuel takes its toll 32
- Access to procedures Assist masters by posting timely information on port websites 34

