5. Sustainable development
6. Conclusions and reflections

Founded in 1955, IAPH is the global port alliance, representing today around 170 port regular members and 126 associate members linked to ports in 87 countries. Together, IAPH port members handle more than one third of global maritime traffic and more than 60% of container traffic.

IAPH has a consultative status and represents the interests of world ports at IMO and additional UN agencies such as the ILO, UNCITRAL, UNCTAD (UN Conference on Trade and Development), UNEP (UN Environment Program) and the UN Global Compact.

IAPH works closely with the World Bank, and World Customs Organization, the Global Maritime Forum, and World Economic Forum.

Three strategic focus areas: Risk and Resilience, Data Collaboration, Climate and Energy

Conclusions and reflections

- Disruption is becoming ‘business as usual’. Resilience management and business continuity planning are a must for critical infrastructures such as ports.
- Digitalisation of the maritime sector is lagging behind, lack of trust between stakeholders in data sharing is the prime barrier to overcome.
- Decarbonisation ambitions are increasing, leading to regional disparities amidst uncertainty about fuel choice and funding. Ensuring a just and equitable transition is key to unlock the discussion at IMO.
- Energy transition offers multiple opportunities for ports, certainly for those that are in energy trade.
- IAPH is targeting an integrated approach to sustainability through WPSP and its ongoing initiatives – Join us in this effort!

- Will globalisation make (some) way for regionalisation? How will this affect supply chains?
- Is the economies-of-scale business model of global shipping and logistics still valid?
- Has the landlord port governance model reached its expiration date? Should port authorities become more entrepreneurial?
- Has the single-port governance model reached its limits? Will we see more far-reaching forms of cooperation?
- Are port labour arrangements adapted to the digital and automated era?
- Is there a need for global regulation of the port sector?

Thank you!
